

US Capital Partners Introduces New Financing Program for Clean Energy Projects under 20MW

Private investment bank expands its offering to help distributed generation (“DG”) clean energy projects in the United States and internationally secure the well-structured financing they need to succeed.

SAN FRANCISCO, JANUARY 2014 – US Capital Partners, LLC (“US Capital Partners”), a leading private investment bank for small to lower middle market businesses, is proud to announce its Project Financing Program for clean energy projects under 20MW. The growing investment bank’s Clean-Tech group continues to expand with innovate banking solutions for the fast-growing and changing Renewable Energy industry. The fragmented DG market in all segments (commercial, industrial, and utility) is burgeoning with new financial solutions. US Capital Partners’ DG program enables efficient and effective banking with a view to providing best-in-class project financing.

“This is the fifth year running that US Capital Partners has increased in size, and we feel a responsibility to further support the Clean-Tech industry with our expertise and financing,” said Jeffrey Sweeney, CEO and Managing Director at US Capital Partners. “There is growing demand among small to lower middle market companies for suitable financing that is structured to meet their specific business and project needs. At US Capital Partners, we always take a custom approach to financing. Our relentless focus on strategic, innovative solutions and on speed and excellence of execution has helped us grow into one of the most successful small-business investment banks in the industry today.”
